Code Blue®

Log4j Vulnerability

Advisory

December 10, 2021

To Whom it may concern,

On December 9th, 2021, researchers published an exploit code for a critical vulnerability in Apache Log4j.

The vulnerability, identified as CVE-2021-44228, allows for unauthorized malicious users to execute code remotely using Apache Log4j2 library. This vulnerability affects all Log4j2 version between 2.0 and 2.14.1 and has been categorized as a critical (10.0) vulnerability.

After a review of Code Blue Products, the following has been found:

Product	Version	Affected?	Notes
ToolVox	All	No
IP1500/IP2500/IP5000	All	No
Centry/LS1000/LS2000	All	No
Fusion Connect	Beta	No
Fusion Monitor	Beta	Yes	Update to be applied to official release

Please direct questions or concerns to our Technical Support team at technicalsupport@codeblue.com or (616)327-2593.

Thank you,

John Plooster
Director of Enterprise Solutions
Code Blue Corporation